A partnership with the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service Family and Consumer Sciences

What Is A Homemaker?

The Anderson County Homemakers Organization is comprised of a diverse group of individuals with many different ages, interests and talents in this ever-changing world. We are constantly striving to acquire more efficient and effective skills through methods of researched based information from the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service & Kentucky State University. As dedicated volunteers, we network with local agencies and give tirelessly of ourselves to enrich the lives of our families and communities.

About us. . .

Anderson County Homemakers are a part of the Fort Harrod Area and Kentucky Extension Homemaker Association (KEHA).

Homemakers gain new knowledge and skills that improve the quality of life for themselves and their families. Members may also expand their horizons by attending county, state and national meetings and workshops that provide good fellowship combined with concentrated learning opportunities.

Homemaker membership is available through club or mailbox membership. If you are interested in joining or starting an Extension Homemakers Group in your neighborhood or community, simply complete the enrollment form and return to the address listed.

“Learn with Us”

The Anderson County Extension Homemakers provide an opportunity for members to keep learning. Homemakers receive monthly educational lessons in all areas of Family and Consumer Sciences.
